AGE PENSION

To qualify for the Age Pension a person must reach age pension age. The age of when this occurs will be based upon the person's date of birth. The Following table can help to demonstrate this:

Born between	Eligible for Age Pension at age
1 July 1955 and 31 Dec 1956	66.5
From 1 Jan 1957 and Onwards	67.0

The person claiming the Age Pension must be in Australia and an Australian resident. To be eligible for Age Pension you must satisfy residence requirements. You must be:

- An Australian resident on the day you lodge your claim, and
- Be physically present in Australia on the day you lodge your claim

You also need to have been an Australian resident for a continuous period of at least 10 years, or for a number of periods that total more than ten years, with one of the periods being at least five years, unless you:

- are a refugee or former refugee, or
- were getting Partner Allowance, Widow Allowance or Widow B Pension immediately before turning Age Pension age, or
- are a woman whose partner died while you were both Australian residents, and you have been an Australian resident for two years immediately before claiming Age Pension

If you have lived or worked in a country with which Australia has an international social security agreement, it may help you meet these residence requirements.

A person's Age Pension entitlement is calculated by Centrelink after applying an income and asset test. The test that produces the lowest entitlement will determine the amount of Age Pension a person will receive. The Centrelink rules provide specific definitions of what they assessed to be an asset and income under both tests. security agreement, it may help you meet these residence requirements.

HOW MUCH PENSION DO I GET?

The maximum rate of age pension is based upon the following table. Refer to:

<https://www.humanservices.gov.au/individuals/services/centrelink/age-pension/eligibility/payment-rates>

These figures are currently adjusted for CPI on twice a year (every 6 months) and occur on the 20th of March and 20th September.

THE ASSETS TEST

The assets test thresholds are shown in the table below. For every $1,000 of assets above the lower limits, your fortnightly pension reduces by $3.00 per fortnight.

Refer to: <https://www.humanservices.gov.au/individuals/enablers/assets/30621>

Assets can include:

- Home contents, cars, boats and caravans
 - Antiques, stamp or coin collections
 - Superannuation over age pension age
 - Account Based Pensions
 - Real property
 - Shares in private companies, discretionary trusts
 - Long-term Annuities
 - Licenses, for example fishing or taxi
 - Surrender value of life insurance policies
 - Collections for trading, investment or hobby purposes, and
 - Generally, any debt secured against an asset is deducted from the value of that asset.

GIFTING

In order to prevent you from simply giving away your assets to qualify for age pension and other income support payments , Centrelink and DVA have introduced rules that impact income support recipients who “gift” away their assets. These gifting rules can be summarised as follows:

- Two tests apply in respect of asset gifting:
 - a maximum of $10,000 in gifts is allowed in a single financial year (for both singles and couples combined), and
 - a maximum of $30,000 in gifts is allowed over a five-year rolling period (singles or couples combined).
- Gifts outside this limit will be class as 'deprived assets'.
- The deprived assets will count under the assets test for five years from the date of gift and will be subject to deeming under the income test for the same period.

From a practical sense, the gifting rules carried out by Centrelink and DVA will involve two tests. Firstly, they will look at whether the gift is within the $10,000 per financial year that is allowable. Secondly, they will also test whether the $30,000 limit over a five-year rolling period is satisfied. The combination of these tests will determine whether the client has any deprived assets for a period of 5 years.

The $30,000 limit over a 5-year rolling period is also extended to include the 5-year pre-pension period. That is, the 5 years in the lead up to a client first being entitled to a Centrelink benefit.

THE INCOME TEST

The income thresholds are shown in the table below. Income above the lower threshold reduces the pension by 50 cents in the dollar (single) and 25 cents in the dollar each (for couple).

The maximum rate of age pension is based upon the following table. Refer to:

<https://www.humanservices.gov.au/individuals/enablers/income-test-pensions/30406>

Examples of assessable income include:

- Deemed income from financial investments, including money in superannuation funds if you have reached age pension age
 - Money in Account based pensions
 - Gross employment income- earnings for work performed including wages, salaries, bonuses, penalty rates, overtime, commission or honoraria, and stipends including fringe benefits and amounts salary sacrificed into superannuation
 - Net business income
 - Distributions or dividends from private trusts and private companies
 - Real estate income (including net income or losses from rental property), and income from boarders and lodgers
 - Reportable superannuation contributions
 - Income from outside Australia (including non-Australian pensions) and other income from sources outside Australia
 - Some lump sums

DEEMING

What is deeming?

Deeming is the term which describes the method used by Centrelink and Veteran's Affairs to calculate your assessable income from certain investments when determining the level of entitlement to be paid. Deeming means that you are assumed to earn a certain return on 'financial' investments, irrespective of the actual rate of interest or capital growth you earn.

If you earn more than the deemed rate on your investments, the excess will not be included in the income test and will not affect your Centrelink payment. However, if the investment earns less than the deemed rate, you will still be assessed as earning income at the deemed rate.

The income test then combines the deemed income with income earned from other sources you receive to work out your entitlements under the income test.

How does deeming work?

To work out the level of deemed income that your financial investments earn you simply apply the following rates in regards to the amount of total financial assets you hold. For the current deeming rates refer to :

<https://www.humanservices.gov.au/individuals/enablers/deeming>

The Government changes the deeming rate from time to time to reflect market conditions and most financial institutions offer special accounts that pay interest at the deeming rate.

For pensioner couples (where at least one partner is receiving a pension), the financial assets are combined, for non-pensioner couples (where neither partner is receiving a pension) financial assets are assessed individually.

Which assets are assessed using deeming?

Deeming applies to financial investments, which include:

- Cash
- Bank, building society, credit union accounts and term deposits
- Most friendly society bonds and insurance bonds
- Managed investments and shares in public companies
- Superannuation in accumulation after age pension age
- Bonds, debentures and loans, including private loans
- Gifts above the allowed amount
- Gold and other bullion
- Account based pension purchased from 1 January 2015. Other ones maybe exempt.

Financial investments do not include:

- Your home and its contents, cars, boats and caravans
 - Antiques, stamp or coin collections
 - Superannuation under age pension age
 - Standard life insurance policies
 - Funeral bonds
 - Real property
 - Shares in private companies, discretionary trusts
 - Long-term Annuities
